01 Where brands already buy UGC

Check each site's creator signup page before you apply. Terms, fees and acceptance change often.

Fiverr
You publish a gig with a portfolio, brands buy it

Upwork
You send proposals to posted jobs

Trend
Brands post a brief, creators apply

Collabstr
You list a profile and prices, brands book you

Billo
Vetted pool with templated briefs, you apply to join

Insense
Content with ad rights included, you apply to join

JoinBrands
Open briefs and an academy

Brands Meet Creators
Directory where you contact brands directly

UGC Discords, subreddits
Brands post a rate and usage window, creators reply

TikTok Creator Marketplace
Needs audience reach, priced per campaign

Ranges are what brands often budget, based on a 2026 platform comparison by Hirevire. Beginners usually land at the low end.

2 Start with two platforms, not ten: one where brands post briefs (Trend or Upwork) and one where you build a profile (Fiverr or Collabstr).

02 Brands that already pay for video

A brand that runs video ads has a budget and a reason to need more videos.

1. Meta Ad Library
   20 minutes a day
2. TikTok Creative Center
   Top Ads page
3. Your own shelf
   10 products you use
4. Local and SEA brands
   The bilingual edge

Method 1 · Meta Ad Library

1. Open facebook.com/ads/library and choose “All ads”.
2. Search a keyword from your niche: serum, sleep app, language learning, hotel.
3. Open ads that have run for 3 weeks or more. Long-running ads usually work.
4. Write down the brand, its Instagram handle and the style of video it uses.
5. Pitch a variation of their top ad: a new hook, a different person, a different language.

Method 2 · TikTok Creative Center

Open the Top Ads page and filter by country and industry. Look for small and mid-size brands with only a few ads. They need creators most.

Method 3 · Your own shelf

List 10 products or apps you already use and pitch them first. You can talk about them honestly.

Method 4 · Local and Southeast Asia brands

Look for Indonesian brands that advertise to English-speaking travelers, and English-language apps entering Indonesia. Bilingual videos are rare, so say you can make both versions.

- ✓ It has fewer than 50 videos on its profile, so there is room for more.
- ✓ It replies to comments, so a person is watching the account.
- ✓ It sells something you can use or explain.

Skip it

- × It asks for free videos in exchange for “exposure”.
- × It wants you to buy the product and promises a refund later.
- × It will not talk about payment before you film.
